

GUI for both the server and client. The back-end for the server is slightly more sophisticated since it needs to handle many clients.

Each client has its own copy of the GUI that will take operations from the server and update its document using the OT algorithm.

